

“Safe at Home provides victims and their families with a tool to help heal from their abuse, begin new lives and finally feel a sense of security in their communities.”

- Secretary of State Tre Hargett

• What is Safe at Home?

The Tennessee Secretary of State’s Safe at Home program is an address confidentiality program for victims of domestic violence and other crimes. Safe at Home aims to protect the confidentiality of the participant’s address on public records and provides an official substitute address.

• Why should I consider Safe at Home?

Under Tennessee law, all state or local government records are considered public and available for public review. These records include identifying documents like voter registration and driver’s license information, making it easy for abusers to find you. Through the Safe at Home program, your address is concealed and secure.

• How does Safe at Home protect me?

You will be given a substitute mailing address to be used as an official mailing address. Safe at Home forwards the mail received at the substitute address to you and keeps your address confidential.

• Should I apply for Safe at Home?

You should apply if:

- you are a victim of domestic abuse, stalking, human trafficking, or any sexual offense.
- you are a victim of a crime and have recently relocated or are planning to relocate because you fear future harm.
- you or your children are enrolled in or will need to enroll in government assistance programs or public schools.
