

Use your health savings account to help pay for your Medicare costs.

See how Hank does it.

Hank turns 65 this year. He plans to retire and sign up for Medicare. He can use his health savings account (HSA) to pay for his Medicare premiums and qualified out-of-pocket medical expenses including the deductibles, copayments and coinsurance for:

- Part A (hospital and inpatient care).
- Part B (doctor and outpatient care).
- Part D (prescription drugs).

Hank keeps his HSA after he retires.

Hank gets to keep his HSA after he retires. However, once he signs up for Medicare, he can no longer contribute money to his HSA. But the money he has saved has grown, giving him an advantage for this exciting new time in his life.

His HSA offers financial flexibility.

When retired, Hank can use the money in his HSA for more than just qualified medical expenses, without paying a penalty. He can use the money for any expense, including household items and vacations. However, he must now pay income tax on any money he takes out of his HSA for non-qualified medical expenses.

Hank racks up some big savings.¹
